Dear Friends

Its summer! Summer is a great time for mooching outdoors. Whatever the weather (almost), the long days and lazy, fullness of summer is an invitation to be out there. We are lucky in this village to have a lot of areas rich in wild flowers and meadow grass, mixed woodland, and a good presence of birds and mammals. It's not unusual to see deer around the castle and golf course, kestrels and barn owls. Ecology surveys conducted at dawn and dusk last July and August around the castle spotted 209 bats foraging or commuting on the busiest of the three hour periods. They identified more than seven species of bat¹ and seven roosts in the castle walls. These have all been protected during the repair and repointing work: sharp eyes will detect little slots left in the new work for bats to enter.

Mooching outdoors might mean walking for half a day, seeing fabulous views and returning feeling stretched. It might mean, for the industrious, a good spell of gardening. Or, it might mean lying in the long grass observing the mass of life that even a square foot of ground contains. The complexity of plant structures and of the minute creatures that move amongst them is to wonder at. The naked eye cannot see an iota of the real complexity, nor even can the most sophisticated magnifying devices.

When one stops to contemplate it, the natural world is on a mini- and mega-scale that is hard to comprehend – it is beyond our cerebral comprehension and into the realms of our imaginative and our spiritual comprehension. For those of faith, that wonder and complexity, and sheer goodness of it all speaks to us of the provision of God and something like a limited analogy of the closeness, and immediacy and yet unfathomability of God.

So get blessed with a bit of mooching this summer!

Rev'd Alison Hobbs
