October Newsletter entries – no later than September 18th
Please send to Sue Morgan – sueatpeppermires@gmail.com

Dear friends

I am delighted that we can now resume delivery of this Newsletter throughout the parish of Brancepeth. If you are reading it for the first time since moving here, or for the first time since March, Welcome (back)! Many have accessed the Newsletter online and a few have received it via post in the months since our last fully-delivered issue. We are especially grateful to Sue Morgan, our editor, for keeping going through lockdown, gently cajoling contributors and finding local photos to cheer and connect us. Amidst changing guidelines and uncertain times, the newsletter has been one of the strands of continuity in Brancepeth which has strengthened our church and community.

Another such strand has been St Brandon's weekly worship via Zoom, and we are thankful that so many have taken part regularly on Sunday mornings. As we move these services back into the church building, still with the facility to join online, we celebrate God's continuing goodness and faithfulness. We look forward to welcoming you all, whether you have been part of St Brandon's for years or would just like to give it a try, for example on 13th September when we hold the village Harvest Festival in church.

We need to acknowledge, however, the challenges of recent months and the sense of change and uncertainty which typifies life at the moment. This particularly effects those who are 'key workers' and all who remain vulnerable to COVID-19; young people moving through our education system, and all whose loved ones are spread across countries or regions with restrictions on travel. The Christian faith is deeply rooted in trials and struggles, for Jesus lived a humble, human life with many challenges, disappointments and losses. Yet through his unjust and brutal execution on the cross, he overcame the power of darkness and rose to new and eternal life.

We don't need to pretend we are 'fine' to God, for he understands our lives and losses: God has been with us every day since lockdown. God's love never changes, whatever the future may hold. Recently we sang the beautiful hymn, 'There's a wideness in God's mercy', and I'd like to offer you these words of encouragement:

*There is no place where earth's sorrows are more felt than up in heav'n;
there is no place where earth's failings have such kindly judgement giv'n.*

*For the love of God is broader than the measure of man's mind;
and the heart of the eternal is most wonderfully kind.*

F.W.Faber (1814-63)

With all good wishes

Anna

Receiving the newsletter electronically

St Brandon's is committed to providing a copy of the newsletter to everybody in the parish (and to members of the congregation who live outside the parish), and we are delighted to be able to resume the delivery of paper copies to all households, after a break of several months. That said, we know that there are some people in both the village and the wider church congregation who would prefer to have a link to an electronic version. We are very happy to provide that service and will roll it out for the October issue for anyone who would like.

If you would like to receive the newsletter electronically rather than on paper, please email me on hesterhigton@phonecoop.coop. You will need to let me know your street address (so that it can be removed from the delivery rotas) and all the email addresses for people in the household who wish to receive the link to the newsletter. In accordance with GDPR regulations, these addresses will only be used for this purpose and will not be employed for sending you other communications. You can add further email addresses at any time, simply by dropping me a line.

You will also need to let us know if you move away from Brancepeth, so that we can make sure that a paper copy is delivered to the new residents, but we will provide a reminder about this in each monthly email.

Prayer Station in Church

At the beginning of lockdown, the Prayer Team redoubled their efforts in engaging intentionally with praying for everyone in the community of St Brandon's and the village of Brancepeth. We were asked to think of ways to help people to pray when the church re-opened for private prayer.

A member of the prayer team had a clear vision of an image of a large candle as a focus for prayer and hope, to be placed in the church in order to help people pray, in the absence of being able to physically light candles in church (a practice helpful to many). I am very pleased to say a very talented member of the congregation was able to realise the vision and has painted the most glorious image of a lit candle, inspired by the artist Klimt. The image is placed on a board in the south transept of St Brandon's (pictured) and we encourage people to use it in whatever way is helpful. Many of the shapes and features of the piece have been inspired and taken from the shapes and colours in our beautiful church. The image is even more striking and life-like in the flesh.

If the candle helps and speaks to even one person of the hope that is in us and the light of Christ in these dark times, it will have done as intended. Thank you to the wonderful artist for faithfully working with the vision and bringing this to fruition and to the member of the prayer team for being obedient and faithful in describing their vision. We hope it will bless the congregation and visitors to St Brandon's greatly.

Whilst the village hall has been closed we have been able to progress the stage refurbishment plans which have included: new stage side curtains, star cloth backdrop, safety steps and new overhead stage storage. The upstairs hall has also been repainted. A mobile phone booster has recently been fitted in the hall to improve the signal in the building and the surrounding area. This was part-funded by the BCA and Brancepeth Parish Council.

Kind regards,

Peter Aitken

BCA Chairman.

Sue Morgan (SM) interviewed by Sabine Heslop (SH)

SH: How long have you and your family been living in Brancepeth?

SM: Four generations of my family have lived in the village since 1975. First my husband, then me, then his parents and now my son, daughter in law and grandson.

SH: What do you like in Brancepeth?

SM: The community. The size of Brancepeth is just right, so that you get to know people. We quickly got to know our neighbours, who happened to be the churchwardens, and so I soon found myself involved with the church again. I was PCC secretary for 28 years, church warden for six and now I edit the newsletter.

SH: Bless you - that's a long time! What did you do professionally?

SM: I was a teacher of Geography and English. When James went to school I did some supply work at Framwellgate School and when a job in the special needs department came up it drew my interest. I did a Post Graduate Certificate in Dyslexia as part of a MA in Special Needs and worked as a SENCO there for several years. I spent my last seven years of teaching at East Durham (Houghall) College, working with dyslexic students.

SH: Great - this is important work! What did your husband do?

SM: John taught Art at Durham Johnston School specialising in Ceramics. Our son James went to the same school, which was practical as well as giving him a good start in life.

SH: Sure. What do you do in retirement? I guess a lot of garden work – this garden looks fabulous!

SM: Yes, I like gardening, I like the combination of managed and wilder areas.

SH: I can see that you have a hand in it, but at the same time, you let nature be itself. It is really beautiful!

SM: (smiles) Also, we liked to travel. Our last big journey took us to India. What an experience! The extremes in this country assail you everywhere you go. We saw people living in utter poverty in the back streets of Delhi, and rats coming out of every corner. But also fabulous wealth and beauty in the Palaces and temples.

SH: Uh! What made you go to India, and why did you end up in the back streets?

SM: We were both interested in the culture and the art, and it is also a good place for vegetarians – we knew we would be properly fed! All those lovely curries! We went with an ethical travel company, which ran projects providing work for disadvantaged locals, and trying to feed the money earned through tourism back into the local economy. This is how we came to see the other face of India – most tourists see only the excessive wealth and exuberance of the palaces. I will never forget these experiences – but you would have to harden your heart to be able to live there.

SH: I can imagine. What happened to you husband?

SM: It was very unexpected, John had always been fit and healthy, but then he was diagnosed with cancer too late to respond to treatment. He carried on through the treatment finishing as many jobs as he could in the year he had left. It's very hard living alone after forty years of happy marriage but I am very fortunate that our son James and his family live so close by. I see my grandson Paul almost every day.

SH: This is good. I guess the Covid-19 crisis has made things harder?

SM: Indeed! Had John still been here, the crisis would have hardly touched us. If you are alone, it is tedious, and you are constantly confronted with what you have lost, especially in the evenings. John was such a practical person, he always had a project on the go. He renovated four houses in the village and he was also Chairperson of the Allotments – a job that has somehow now fallen to me.

SH: I heard he also did many things for the church?

SM: Oh yes, little bits of John's work are all over the church, for example the burned cross.

SH: It is so beautiful in its simplicity, and so stark in its message!

SM: Indeed. He also made the white communion set Anna is using on zoom services.

SH: Really? I admire it greatly - such grace and pure beauty! Now my last question: What are your hopes for Brancepeth?

SM: I think it has a lot to offer. It is wonderful what Brancepeth has been doing over the summer to encourage children – it is so important that Brancepeth has something for them, since they offer so much to us! Our future is our children.

SH: Quite right! Thank you, Sue, it was lovely to speak to you. You are doing so much behind the scenes! God bless you!

Shoebox Sunday - 18th October 2020

This year, St Brandon's is supporting Blythwood Care in their Christmas Shoebox Appeal. Blythwood is a charity founded in 1966 in Glasgow by Rev. Jackie Ross who wanted to show Jesus' love with practical action and care for people who experience isolation, rejection and need in the UK and overseas, and is best known for its Christmas Shoebox Appeal. This year the Shoeboxes are going across Eastern Europe.
